The Diabetes Prevention Source is now DPS Health

LOS ANGELES, CA – September 28, 2008. The Diabetes Prevention Source has a new name -- DPS Health. When we first founded the company, our goal was to develop technology that would help the rapidly growing population at risk for and already diagnosed with type 2 diabetes to improve their overall health through physical activity and nutritional support.

While helping individuals prevent the development of diabetes and its complications is still a major focus, over the past four years, DPS Health has found that many different types of health organizations have the need for our interactive web-based services to help successfully manage countless other health conditions

“As our company has grown, our offerings have expanded to include weight management, physical activity promotion; use of biometric devices, mental health, and more”, said Neal Kaufman M.D., M.P.H., CEO of DPS Health. “With these new offerings, we felt that Diabetes Prevention Source had become too limiting. All DPS Health products and services improve the ability of healthcare providers to improve the overall health of their patients, and to this end we feel DPS Health is a better fit for our organization now and in the future.”

About DPS Health

DPS Health, formerly known as Diabetes Prevention Source, extends the practice of medicine to meet current and future health threats. The increasing prevalence of life-style diseases and consumer driven treatments require new and improved ways to engage, enlighten and motivate individuals to adopt and sustain health promoting and disease prevention behaviors. DPS Health creates software solutions through an innovative, flexible and scalable technological platform (Behavior Change Suite™) based on research-proven lifestyle coaching methods. The DPS Weight Management division has developed the web-based Virtual Lifestyle Management service (VLM), based upon the Diabetes Prevention Program developed by the University of Pittsburgh. In addition, DPS Health has the Physical Activity Prescription™ to help sedentary and overweight adults become more physically active.
